

Workforce Australia - Transition to Work Service Delivery Plan 2022-2027 for Participants

About our program

If you are a young person aged 15-24, our services for Transition to Work is all about building your aspirations, helping you get work experience and supporting you to succeed in achieving your chosen employment or study pathway.

We provide flexible and tailored services to meet your needs and can connect with you face to face, over the phone, or in a one-on-one appointment, to which you can even bring along a friend or family member if you prefer.

At Bamara, we have the skills and experience to tailor your pathway into work or study so you can start with confidence to build your own future.

Our Services

- We have culturally safe and welcoming office spaces, and over 1/3 of our staff identify as Indigenous.
- We are connected to local Elders, community groups and allied health services who can advise, guide and give you practical support so you can focus on your future.
- Our Youth Ambassadors are people your age who are available to talk about your situation.
- Our Digital Champions provide access to digital resources, to help you use them and to develop practical skills.
- We will assist you with the training you need to get you job-ready for the needs of local employers and the labour market.
- We will help you write a resume, teach you how to prepare a job application and train you so have you the skills and confidence for job interviews.
- We can help you with travel, clothing and equipment you may need for your job.
- When you start your new job, your Job Mentor will be there to help you settle in and will support you for six months to help you succeed.

About us

We are an Indigenous-owned company that helps build and strengthen Indigenous and non-Indigenous communities across Australia.

Bamara means “Helper, Friend, Companion” in Yolngu Language in Arnhem Land, and that’s who we are.

Education, employment and training have always been fundamental to Bamara’s commitment to helping local communities prosper across New South Wales, Queensland and Northern Territory.
